Introduction

This document is designed to be an employer's guide for an internal private I-9 audit to be used in conjunction with the advice of corporate immigration counsel.

This document alone is not a comprehensive list of possible I-9 related issues.

Step 1: Confirm Existence of Forms Employer Is Required To Have on File

- A. Confirm there is a Form I-9 on file for every person currently employed (who was hired on or after November 7, 1986). You do not need to have an I-9 for employees who were hired prior to November 7, 1986, and have been continuously employed since that time.
- B. Confirm there is a Form I-9 on file for certain terminated employees.
 1. Terminated employees hired within the last three years, regardless as to when terminated.
 2. Terminated employees hired at any time, if terminated in the last year.
- C. Confirm the Form I-9 was completed using the correct version (for the time).
 1. When the I-9 dated 11-21-91 was released, it replaced all earlier editions.
 - a) Confirm the Form I-9 on file for all employees hired after November 22, 1991, and before April 3, 2009, is the version dated 11-21-91 or later.
 - b) Confirm the Form I-9 on file for all employees hired on or after April 3, 2009, and before May 7, 2013, is the version dated 02/02/09 or later.
 2. When the I-9 dated May 7, 2013, was released, it replaced all earlier editions.

a) All new individuals hired or reverified on or after May 7, 2013, and before January 22, 2017, should have the version dated 03/08/13.

3. When the I-9 dated November 14, 2016 was released, it replaced all earlier editions.

a) All new individuals hired or reverified on or after January 22, 2017, should have the current/new version of the Form I-9 on file (11/14/16 N in lower left).

 - D. General Issues
 1. Common issues to watch for:
 - a) "White-out" should never be used.
 - b) Information should not be obliterated.
 - c) Original forms should not be replaced with "new original" forms unless attached to old incomplete or incorrect forms.

Step 3: Confirm Supporting Documents Are Attached to the Form

- A. Check that the documents as listed under List A, OR B and C are attached to the form (this practice must be applied uniformly to all employees).
 1. There should be no more/no less.
 2. If Section 3 was used for an update or reverification, then the documents from Section 2 AND Section 3 should be attached.

Step 4: Make Corrections*

- A. Corrections are permitted; however, obliterating previous incorrect information is not permitted.
- B. Corrections should be made conspicuously so as to avoid allegations of evidence tampering.
- C. Corrections should ONLY be made by lining out incorrect entries and/or inserting the correct information, annotating the initials of the individual making the correction and the date made.
- D. Who should make corrections:
 1. Employees (only) should make any necessary corrections in Section 1. These changes should be initialed and dated when made.
 2. Employer (any authorized representative) may make corrections in Sections 2 and 3. These changes should be initialed and dated when made.

document(s).

3. Excess information (or listing of documents) should be lined or “Xd” out to indicate “removal” from the form. Such changes should be initialed and dated when made.

E. Do not backdate or recreate any document.

1. All changes should be indicated as of the date actually made.

F. Readily available information (i.e., from a photocopy of a document attached to the I-9) may be used to update or correct the data on the form.

1. If information is not readily available, the employer may have employee assist in correcting an existing form or fill out a new form (attach to the old one).

G. Attaching a memo to the I-9 file indicating that the document was audited/reviewed and updated/corrected (or a new form created to supplement an original) is helpful.

H. Where corrections are not possible (i.e., employee is no longer employed/unable to correct), attaching a memo to the I-9 file indicating that the error was identified but steps could not be taken to correct is helpful (or use the “Additional Information” area on page two of the current edition of the form).
