

Pulled Over and Suspected of a DUI in Phoenix, AZ

By: Jeremy Geigle, Attorney at Law
JacksonWhite, P.C.

If a police officer pulls you over in Phoenix, AZ and suspects that you've been drinking, here are some things that you are required to do if asked by the police officer:

- leave the vehicle,
- submit to a blood test
- submit to a urine test
- submit to a breath test

On the other hand, if the police officer asks you to do any of the following, you are not required to do so unless you have consulted with your Phoenix, AZ DUI attorney first:

- field sobriety test
- blowing into a hand-held preliminary testing device (PBT)
- answer any questions from the police officer

The best thing you can do if you've been pulled over and suspected of a DUI in Phoenix, AZ is to respectfully and politely inform the police officer that you need to speak to an attorney. Under Arizona DUI law, any person that is suspected of a DUI has the right to talk to a Phoenix, AZ DUI attorney before deciding whether or not to submit to a chemical test or answer any questions. It is in your best interest to consult with an experienced Phoenix, AZ DUI attorney if you've been charged with a DUI in the east valley or feel as though your rights were violated in a police pull-over.
