Bayer Has Settled Less Than Half The DVT And PE Blood Clot Claims Filed Or Subject To Apparent Tolling Agreements

(Posted by Tom Lamb at www.DrugInjuryWatch.com on November 26, 2012)

SUMMARY: Based on some information found in the Bayer Stockholders' Newsletter which covered its third quarter financial reporting, it appears that Bayer has quite a ways to go with regard to settling the remaining, and still increasing, number of YAZ, Yasmin, Ocella, and Gianvi claims involving pulmonary embolism (PE) and/or deep vein thrombosis (DVT).

There was not a single mention of Beyaz nor Safyral that I could find in this Bayer Stockholders' Newsletter.

One wonders when we will start to hear from Bayer about the number of Beyaz and Safyral legal claims involving PE and/or DVT blood clot side effects.
