Three people were injured in a serious three-car California auto collision in Grass Valley on Sunday afternoon. The collision occurred on Highway 49 at Wellswood Way near the Golden Chain Motel. A van involved in the collision went over a 30-foot embankment, and two of its occupants were taken by ambulance to Sierra Nevada Memorial Hospital. An occupant of a Ford Focus that sustained major damage was transported to Sutter Roseville Medical Center with serious injuries.

We do not know who was responsible for causing this California auto accident. Sometimes the CHP traffic collision report will help determine who was at fault based on witness statements and the physical evidence at the scene of the collision. However, follow up investigation, including accident reconstruction, is sometimes necessary to get to the bottom of which driver was entirely or mostly at fault.

Anyone seriously injured in an auto accident has a number of serious issues to deal with after a collision like this. First, the legal responsibility for the collision must be determined. Sometimes that requires investigation beyond what is contained in the police report. Second, the medical bills must be paid. Even if there is health insurance to pay for the bills initially, the health insurance company will likely seek reimbursement from any liability insurance recovery. That means that the health insurance company will be competing for money that otherwise would go to the injured victim. Third, when there are multiple people injured in a crash, they will often be competing for a proportional share of a limited amount of insurance money. Lastly, insurance companies will do whatever they can to avoid paying fair compensation for not only medical bills, but lost income and pain and suffering as well.

Because of these and many other issues, injury victims an involved in a injury accident like this are strongly urged to consult with an experienced Sacramento Personal Injury Attorney who will make sure that your rights are protected and that you are dealt with fairly.
