Independence Day is a time to celebrate the birth of our great nation, with families and friends get together for patriotic barbeques and swimming parties. Yet, like other holidays, the 4th of July puts police officers on high alert for DUIs.

Arizona DUIs charges are very serious and come with heavy consequences: financially, personally, and professionally. Your public driving record will be marked for an extended period of time, up to ten years for non-commercial drivers, and even longer for drivers with commercial privileges. In addition, your current job, or future job hunts, can be affected as well as you may be obligated to tell your current or future employer about your DUI conviction. Lastly, DUIs yield exorbitant fines, something no one in this economy wants to suffer.

However, if you were convicted of a DUI this 4th of July, you shouldn't suffer the costly legal consequences without a fight. An experienced DUI defense attorney can help you mitigate your punishments and alleviate your stress.
